

You do not have to tell their whole life.
You need words you can stand up and say.

You have been asked to speak. Every memory feels important, the page is empty, and “say something from the heart” has not helped you begin.

Build a speech around real memories and the minutes you have actually been given. Four working sheets guide the calls, story choices, draft and rehearsal. Eight focused chapters and sixteen annotated fictional speeches show different situations without asking you to borrow someone else’s life.

- Gather memories from people who knew them.
- Shape an opening, two stories and a close.
- Time the speech aloud and prepare a readable page.

Tessa Alderwick

Guide + working sheets

THE EULOGY YOU CAN GIVE

Gather Real Memories, Shape Two Stories, and Prepare a Page to Read Aloud

Your memories. Your words. A spare page.

TESSA ALDERWICK